OUT OF

CONTROL

In the process of expansion, applicate facilities, departments and subordinate institutions, all and subordinate insuctions, an with their expensive adminis-trative apparatus, have been established. At the same time, the healthy competition that has resulted from breaking the scademic monopoly once en-joyed by the Hebrew University has led as well to the extravagance of luring teachers from one school to the other with higher pay and other emoluments. All the while administrative staffs and costs have been shooting up and elaborate and expensive public relations operations have been created to enhance the image of the various schools and cater to overseas donors.

Yet it has always been clear that the overseas supporters could only help with the development budgets. The costs of operation would have to be financed from another source, namely the Government. These costs approach 70 per cent of the total budget for the Tel Aviv University and almost 80 per cent for the Hebrew University. And since most of this money goes to salaries, it means that the academic and administrative employees are being paid by the Government, but without any genuine Government power to determine the payment scales for this remains a matter for internal negotiation within the confines of the universities.

The result is that wage scales administrators have reached unprecedentedly generous heights, apart from direct wages, there erous sabbatical allowances, psyments for travel tax, car and telephone maintenance even for those who have no cars or telephones, and the teachers are already gearing themselves for even greater demands such as even sabhatical travel expenses for the entire family and 13th and 14th month salaries.

Faced with rampant inflation, and faced with a more critical public, sensitive to waste and mismanagement, the Treasury, mismanagement, the Treasury, which was prepared to bail out the schools in past years, is now matering resistance. And the Min-herry of Education, knowing that scarce resources might better be allocated to primary and sec-medary education than another have achool in Haifs or a medical haw achool in Haifa or a medical school in Beersheba, has also become more muscular.

Clearly, greater Government control carries with it a danger of infringement on academic sova ereignty. But the absence of some kind of effective Government involvement has led to bankruptcy, and determination of where public money goes by pri-vate institutions.

In our democratic process it not beyond the nation's is. capacity to introduce public supervision to assure financial order and a rational scale of provities in funding higher edu-cation and yet not violate aca-demic freedom. 1

What is needed now is a coherent policy and long-range planning determined jointly by the Government and the universities but with a much greater accent on the Government's role than has been the case until DOW.

Procedural bureaucracy and poli-tical metoric bogged down the confermice, the observers said. It struggled through a heavy schedule struggied through a neavy schedule of somomic topics, destined to create measures that would wrest concessions from the developed na-tions and grant a bigger share of weath to the 96 nations still considered to be developing.

But the main resolution of the conference, calling for Third World participation in future monetary de-cisions and demands for a "link" between Special Drawing Rights (paper gold) and development assistance, had its teeth extracted by the industrialized countries. After about 200 hours of negotiations the resolution was toned down to a general call for these concessions without binding effects on the richer countries.

300 dead in Indian heat

NEW DELHI (Reuter). - The death toll in a searing heat-wave in northern and eastern India, now in its third week, was unofficially reported yesterday to be nearing 300. A temperature of 57.12 degrees centigrade recorded in the coal-mine area of Dhanbad has turned the already arid area into an inferno. Aided by the heat, a smallpox epidemic in the northern state of Haryana has claimed a further 200 lives, and officials said it could not be fully controlled until the monsoon begins in July.

A serious drinking-water short-age, particularly in Bihar and West Bengal, could lead to other epidemics as people drink from contaminated sources.

"AN Ibsen of our time" is how the two authors assess Arnold Wesker and his plays. If you have seen any of the plays or read some, these assessors cut the ground from these assessors cut the ground from under the feet of your objections with the warning: "We don't con-sider that these plays abould be pinned-down in perpetuity by now fragmentary impressions of two or three productions, still less are they granuately accessible in the privacy adequately accessible in the privacy of the printed word." Later, in case you've found a loophole for criticism, they also warn you that his essays must "not be used as a short cut into the plays."

So how are you to evaluate Wes-ker's output? By their analysis, of course, in which they draw paral-lels not only between him and Ibsen but even between him and Shakasasere Shakospeare.

The introduction tries to explain why Wesker's plays have drawn so many unfavourable roviews. It says, "As a dramatist, he will thus suf-fer from temporary shifts of aritical fashion." The rest is a wordy, inflated discussion of every possible detail in the characters and situations. In case these have escaped you when you saw the plays, they blame the direction, including Ar-

THE decaying American South and the existential problem of freedom in a corrupt, and corrupt-ing society, are the subject matter of this first novel written by Shir-ley Ann Grau since her Pulitzer Prize-winning "The Keepers of the House" in 1964. Well-rooted in the mainstream of the southern Gothlo led by William Faulkner and Teanesse Williams, "The Condor Passes" nevertheless owes more to some of the minor writers in the field, notably to Katherine Anne Porter. Despite its sources, however, it is a beautifully crafted noval, developed with consummate skill over a time span of nearly a century, and en-compassing three generations in the life of a New Orleans multimillionaire.

"Condor" of the title, the six-foot "black birdman" Stanley, chauffeur, the fabric of the lives entwined as the novel traces the Old Man's vast accumulation of wealth and power, from dirt poor Midwest to the sleezy brothels, bars and shady ventures of

New Orleans, and the final cloak of respectability in stocks and bonds. Of his heirs apparent, his elder daughter Anna has retreated into religious fanaticism after the death of her only son, a leukemia victim; the younger daughter Margaret has become a shrewd businesswoman, heading the family enterprises, but also a collector of fine ants and of lovers; and his son-in-law Robert, carefully groomed as Anna's husband and titular head of the business, has turned into a drunken playboy. Only the eagle-like Stanley, "a secret thief", emerges comparatively free of the money-stigms, though he, too, is left "a huge broken wavery shadow, black wings fluttering on each side".

The death of the Old Man is a symbolic death-in-life for Stanley as well "Like the Old Man, he was

Ben-Aharon welcomed by Committee

Jernvalom Post Reporter TEL AVIV.

- Histadrut Secretary-General Yitzhak Ben-Aharon got a warm welcome at Sunday's weekly meeting of the Histadrut Central Committee: the last time he appeared before it he had announced his intention to resign.

His deputy and Labour Panty Histadrut faction whip, Mr. Yeru-ham Meshel, expressed his colleagues' satisfaction that Mr. Ben-Aharoa had finally agreed to retract post.

Mr. Meshel noted the unanimous rejection of the resignation anmancement by all members of the Central Committee. Mr. Ben-Aharon thanked his well-wishers with a few remarks, and the committee proceeded with its agenda.

One decision concerned cooption of new members onto the Dan bus cooperative with a share costing ber 31, 1970). Another concerned forbidding any institution or Histadrat official from suspending groups of workers from Histadrut mem-bership. The Central Committee resolved that only it was empowered to take such a step.

Inflation worse, Horowitz warns: 'More radical measures needed' ernstiem Post Reporter TEL AVIV. - It is a pity the Government has not yet implemented the programme submitted by Mr. Moshe Sanbar for checking inflation, according to Mr. David Horowitz, former Bank of Israel Governor, at a seminary at the Productivity Institute on Sunday.

(Bank Governor Sanbar, in a report to the Government in April, recommended that subsidized inter-est rates be raised, and made several other recommendations related should be a part. to the means of payments, in an effort to stem inflation.)

Mr. Horowitz felt liquidity ratios for fixed bank deposits may have to be raised in order to restrain lending to the public; but this would not apply to current deposits, as liquidity ratios applied to them are already the world's highest.

Social tension, Mr. Horowitz said, is only one of the several factors

(This will give time for the Government to table the bulky volumes in the Knesset by the end of December, containing every detail of proposed expenditure during the fiscal year beginning next April 1.) Mr. Gamy recalls that requests from Ministries for the current year totalled H120,000m. and they had to be cut by onefifth.

He reminds ministerial planners that the volume of money in circulation continues to increase and prices are rising, "mainly owing to a large inflow of foreign currency." The opportunity should be taken within each Ministry of pruning less essential outlays (where possible by improved efficiency), so as to release scarce funds for more urgent activities. LIABILITY OF GUARANTOR ON NOTE

The Supreme Court dismissed an appeal against a judgment of the Tel Aviv District Court delivered on September 15, 1971 (in C.C. 522/70).

Bank Leumi, the respondents in the present case, gave a written undertaking to the maker of a promissory note that they would not negotiate the note in their possession to anyone else and that they would not bring any action on the note against him "(the maker).

Subsequently the respondents sued the appellant, who had gua-

First we threw out the old seats. Then we threw out the old everything else. Now you'll find new colours, new fabrics, new carpets. In fact, new everything else. As well as one or two other things exclusive to TWA passengers.

You'll be offered the choice of three meals in economy, for example.

Most airlines give you no choice. And you'll have the choice of two films.* Most airlines show one, or none. Then we have a new terminal in New York (for TWA passengers only). It has its own customs and immigration.

Most airlines still share one old terminal. However, we feel it's our twin seat that may tempt you to try TWA next time you fly to America.

If so, we're sure it's our total Ambassador Service that will make you fly back with us.

Plane diverted by fog to army airfield

LOD AIRPORT. - A Swissair plane landed at a military field in the north early Sunday when heavy fog temporarily closed Lod Airport.

The pilot had first thought of heading for Cyprus, but went through with the landing at 1.15 a.m. when he finally received permission from the military. Customs and passport control men were rushed to the field to process the passengers, who were then taken by bus to Tel Aviv. The plane was transferred to Lod a few hours later and left
